

Measuring for Corner Windows

Corner Windows

There will always be a small gap between the blinds when it comes to corner windows. However there are ways to minimise the light and vision, here are a few tips:

- Have A to B (the blind running all the way through) covering the front window to achieve the most privacy, to stop vision down the gap between the butting blind.
- Position the gap to minimise the light coming in or in a way to make the gap less obvious when entering the room

How To Measure

Measure the first blind A to B into the corner without making any deductions. When measuring C to D it is important to account for the projection depth from the blind. Each blind requires a different allowance that must be subtracted and this is highlighted in the table on the right.
